Planning Update

- Fable Cottage: An environmental and social review of the site is still in progress. The architect has made some minor changes to provide extra sea views.
- Christmas Hill: Saanich Council has rejected South Island Development Corporation's latest high-density proposal for Christmas Hill. As with the previous proposal, the proposed density was far above that provided for by the North Quadra Local Area Plan.
- Tree Preservation by-law: This by-law protects these species: Pacific yew, Garry oak, arbutus, Pacific dogwood, Douglas-fir over 24" in diameter, and any tree over 31½" in diameter. For purposes of the by-law, a tree is any living, erect, woody plant which is
  - i 16.3 feet or more high
  - ii 3.9 inches or greater in diameter
- Wesley Road widening: Wesley Road from Haliburton to Claremont is registered as a collector road, and with the new development at Claremont School, Wesley Road is to be widened. Widening is limited to 9 metres, as agreed with residents whose property fronts on the road.

The Friends of Mt. Douglas Park

Banning mountain bikes from the park, and from Mt. Tolmie and Knockan Hill Parks, is the major recent development. In all three parks, violators caught will receive a $50 ticket. We hope that people who were afraid to wander the trails because of the many mountain bikers will now return and use the park for their recreation. In the presentation we made to the Parks and Recreation Committee and Council, we stressed the need for suitable alternative sites for mountain biking. There are a number already, but unfortunately none of them are quite as convenient as Mt. Douglas Park.

As part of our long term goal to expand the park through aquisition of land on the west side, we spent a wet weekend scrambling along the rocky spine trying to find the survey pins; we were appalled to discover how far the park boundary is from the trail many people now use. The aerial photographs we have been using give a very distorted picture; these findings make it essential that we have a long term plan for park acquisition in this area. It also highlights the generosity of the property owners along the park boundary in allowing public access to the park along trails that meander through their properties. Please respect their request that park users stay on the trails.

Our next meeting will be in April; the tentative theme is: A Parks Conservancy for Saanich ? A newsletter will be sent to members shortly.

Memberships

Kiwanis Club of Cordova Bay

Our plans for the Easter Food Drive are now complete, following the work of all our members. With your help, we are hoping to fill the Kiwanis Trailer on Saturday, April 3, at the Cordova Plaza.

The Annual Garage Sale will be our next big project—Saturday, May 8 from 9.00 a.m. to 3.00 p.m. We are still looking for saleable items; they may be left at Lyall's Esso Station or call for pick-up arrangements to Jack Hardie, Secretary, 658-8856.

Come out and enjoy the fun! You may even find the thing-a-ma-jig you have been looking for!

More Problems at the Pit

The B.C. Ministry of Highways proposes to locate an asphalt plant on its property adjoining the Saanich gravel pit. The asphalt would be delivered to the McKenzie Avenue Interchange Project. Truck traffic would increase as would noise for those neighbours near the plant. A petition opposing this location for the asphalt plant is being circulated and is available at the Plaza in the Cordova Bay Variety Store and the London Fish and Chip Cafe. Because this is an important issue, we are reprinting the complete text of Lorne and Beverly Ridout's letter to Premier Harcourt.

March 12, 1993

Dear Sir:

It has come to our attention, and subsequently been confirmed by a Ministry of Transportation and Highways staff member in the Project Information Office, that the Ministry intends to allow a private contractor's asphalt batch plant to be set up on their property adjacent to the Municipality of Saanich gravel pit on Cordova Bay Road. The asphalt produced by this batch plant will be used in the paving of the McKenzie Avenue Interchange Project.

The land that this parcel is included in is not zoned for industrial use, and the land and access roadways are surrounded and lined by private residences, schools, beach accesses, public playground/park, a golf course, small shopping mall, public market and restaurants. The area is serviced by rural quality roadways, and considering the already increased traffic from the considerable residential building that has taken place in the last five years, increased large vehicle traffic would be unacceptable. For your information, the Municipality of Saanich recently withdrew a request for a temporary industrial use permit for their adjacent site after strong objections voiced at public meetings showed industrial use to be totally unacceptable for this residential area.

Considering the above, it came with utter disbelief and considerable anger that this site would even be considered. Hence we vehemently oppose any such operation taking place at that location and, to this end, we wish to inform you that we are organizing a vigorous protest campaign throughout the neighbourhood via a petition and public information campaign via the media.

We would greatly appreciate your intervention to ensure that this operation is not allowed to be set up in this area at this time or anytime in the future.

Thank you for your attention to this matter and we remain,

Yours sincerely,

Questions and Answers

1. Why not limit building permits? Saanich cannot, except under unusual circumstances, prevent a property owner from building to the level permitted by the existing zoning of the property. Saanich has frozen the boundaries of residential development until 2000. While this is a positive move, preventing infinite expansion of development and protecting the remaining agricultural land on the Peninsula, it has been done at the cost of permitting infill housing, and it can also tempt Saanich to permit higher-density development. The most promising action, now as always, is to let Saanich know how you feel about it. Development in Cordova Bay is constantly monitored by the Cordova Bay Association to ensure that it meets the provisions of the Local Area Plan and does not reduce residents' quality of life, so be sure to buy your membership this year.
  2. Why the unnecessary destruction of trees? This has always been a difficult issue in Saanich. Some property owners believe they have the right to strip their property if they so choose. By-laws aimed at protecting trees have been and still are becoming more strict, in accordance with a more sophisticated understanding of the interaction between people and environment. On the down side, this sometimes results in trees being cut down illegally: ideally this should result in stricter enforcement of by-laws and penalties heavy enough to discourage the practice.
  3. Why are developers able to change their plans after Council approval? Once a development is approved, Saanich staff can permit small alterations that, in their view, do not alter the basic intent of the approval. If you feel that alterations do affect the intent, as you understand it, it's best to get in touch with an alderman immediately: a good alderman won't support a questionable staff decision.
  4. The houses at the junction of Royal Oak and Cordova Bay Road are enormous. Why is this allowed? This size of house is permitted under the single-family zoning that exists there (which is the same that exists in much of Cordova Bay), and builders will construct (at the wish of the house owner) to the maximum allowable size. Saanich Planning Department is examining the regulations for larger lot single family zones, both in terms of the amount of floor space permitted and of the siting of homes, and expects that it will result in revised regulations and procedures.
  5. Wooded hilltops will soon be developed, and the skyline will be spoiled. The Cordova Bay Association is working with the Broadmead Area Residents' Association to maintain the treed skyline. Saanich Council will order an environmental and social review of the areas, and is prepared to enforce the Tree Preservation by-law.
  6. There is a lack of activities for the elderly in Cordova Bay. Get in touch with Cordova Bay New Horizons (see notice elsewhere in this issue).
  7. Development at Royal Oak and Cordova Bay Roads has sparked fears for the fate of the Blenkinsop Valley. At present most of the Blenkinsop Valley is protected by its agricultural zoning, and by the regulation that, even along the fringes of the valley, any development would have to be able to hitch up to existing gravity sewers. However, a valley like Blenkinsop, gradually being surrounded by development, is always at risk, especially since some of the valley property owners would like to see development take place there.
  8. Litter along Wesley Road from Claremont School and Some students harassing people walking their dogs These concerns should be brought to the attention of Mr. Pringle, principal of Claremont. In the past, Claremont School has responded to concerns about litter by sending students out on a clean-up. This could include cleanup of the stairs and trail from Catalina Terrace down to Lochside Drive. It is hard to know what can be done about the bratty kids.
  9. The laws seem to have no teeth in controlling developers, and Saanich Council is perceived as being a developer council. It is true that by-laws are going to have to get tougher in order to preserve the quality of life that all Saanich residents want to see in their communities—more, they're going to have to be enforced (at increased financial cost). The best way to achieve this is for each community to have an active residents' association (as Cordova Bay has had since 1976), for the residents to support that association (send in your membership dues with the form on the back page of this newsletter), and for the individual resident to make sure that Saanich Council knows what his/her views are on proposed developments. In the view of this writer, the present Saanich Council is the least developer-oriented council Saanich has ever had.
  10. Speeding on Lochside between Walema and southern end. Tempting to drivers because it is a long, straight stretch. Saanich Police check it out from time to time, but will probably do so more often if contacted by residents. Residents could ask the Association to take the problem to the municipality: it would be passed to the Traffic Advisory Committee and from there (if we request it) to Saanich Council, although Saanich Engineering is not known as an innovative department and it's hard to say if they would come up with anything useful.
  11. Concern about the sharp bend on Claremont and the risk of car collisions. There are lots of risks on the bend: owners of the house just at the corner could tell you how many cars ended up in the middle of their lawn before the guard rail was put up. However, Claremont is Cordova Bay's main (almost only) east-west corridor, and local topography just doesn't provide another. Take care.

12. Concern about the drainage off the Ridge between (roughly) Doumac and Haliburton. As the top of the ridge continues to develop, there is more run-off because there is more asphalt and less ground to absorb the water. In addition, underground springs all along the east slope increase total run-off. Saanich, unfortunately, has the habit of directing drainage down Doumac Ravine, which is gradually destroying the park. Recently it has become apparent that, as the north end of the Ridge develops, Saanich intends to send that run-off down Doumac Ravine as well. Even the washout of Lochside Drive a few years ago was unsuccessful in persuading Saanich Engineering or Saanich Council to take this run-off problem as seriously as it needs to be taken.
13. Need for a left-turn arrow at Royal Oak and Cordova Bay Road light. The Association will write to Saanich about this.
14. Loss of woods and green space should be considered by Saanich when we are told we have our quota of parks. The Association continues to make this point to Saanich at every possible opportunity, and it is a matter that will be taken up very seriously when the Cordova Bay Local Area Plan comes up for review.
15. The future of Firbank Farm and Jack's property. We are not aware of any definite proposal for the Jack's property. Firbank Farm is already re-zoned for single-family housing and a couple of duplexes and they have already started digging up the low land that faces on Cordova Bay Road..
16. How can we discourage deer from our gardens? Very high fences! In fact, recently there has been some successful research on the use of chemicals that simulate, for example, cougar faeces and frighten the deer off without harming them. Check to see if these are available commercially. A resident suggests another, perhaps easier possibility: mix one whipped whole egg to three or four cups of water and brush or spray onto the foliage. Apparently this is what Weyerhaeuser does for their seedlings.

Cordova Bay Road Streetscape

As you all know there has been considerable discussion concerning the future of Cordova Bay Road.

At the February 15 meeting, Saanich Council Committee of the Whole reviewed a recent planner's report on the Cordova Bay Streetscape Improvement plan. The report included a review of the process and progress in this matter and recommended that a proposal prepared by several members of the Cordova Bay Streetscape Improvement Committee be accepted as the basis for funding decisions should money for the road become available.

This committee, formed in October 1991, includes three members of the Cordova Bay Association, 3 residents of Cordova Bay Road, and 3 from Doumac Road and has met frequently with Saanich staff to discuss the streetscape.

Representatives of the Cordova Bay Association joined with interested village residents to respond to this report.

Meeting at McMorrans on February 11, this group agreed that any final solution will have to be based on certain fundamental ideas about Cordova Bay. The road design and other community developments can then be evaluated to see if they enhance or are contrary to the community's vision of Cordova Bay.

Kay Porter, David Jones, and Robin Dyke presented this view at the Council meeting, emphasizing the scenic and heritage significance of the village and the importance of the beach as a focus for residents and visitors' use.

Saanich Council voted to review the matter again in August.

Further discussions between the community and staff will continue.

A fundamental problem remains with noise and heavy traffic from dump trucks going to and from the Trio and Saanich gravel pits. This has recently increased again to the order of 200 or more trucks a day. All reports on the road improvement identify this as the major problem. For example, the Vancouver planner Arni Fullerton, in his June 1991 report, stated "If a solution isn't found to the 'gravel pits traffic' through this village, the benefits of the improvements recommended in this report could be marginalized."

Several developments are now under consideration which could affect truck traffic.

How do you envision our Cordova Bay community and development in it?

Claremont School Expansion

Construction is well underway on all aspects of school expansion.

1. Priority is being given to the Math and Science Block on the north end of the school which is to be ready for classes in September. Seven classrooms have been moved into the gymnasium while building is underway.
2. The library will be moved to a central position where the back courtyard is now located.
3. The theatre area will extend from the existing administration area towards Wesley Road, with its stage backing on to the existing gym stage. Comfortable seating will be provided in the new theatre which will be available for community use. The south side will have two rehearsal areas for the band and choral programs.
4. The parking lot has been expanded and gravelled ready for use at the corner of Claremont and Wesley. A joint committee of representatives of the School Board, the construction company and Saanich Council to determine road accesses and traffic patterns.

Shake, Rattle ' n' Roll: An Earthquake in Victoria?

Part 2: Why Prepare?

...February 15, 1993.... West Coast of British Columbia struck by massive earthquake registering 9.4 on the open-ended Richter scale.... Victoria and Vancouver declared disaster areas....

On the evening of February 15, 1993, the power went out in Cordova Bay while the winds rose and the temperature dropped. While we pulled out our candles and flashlights and attempted to light our kerosene heater (which had worked perfectly the last time I had tested it in April), I couldn't help but imagine the potential consequences of an earthquake happening at the same time. In fact, I believe that imagination is an essential factor in preparing for any kind of emergency. Humans are geared to accept easily change of a gradual nature. For example, I might expect that over a period of years the wooden stairs at the front of my house may rot and need replacement. It would be a far greater surprise simply to find them missing one evening as I made my way toward Agate Beach for a moonlight stroll! Planning for a disaster means anticipating the extraordinary and making preparations to deal with it. Why prepare? I'll let you use your imaginations to make additions to the following list of good reasons:

- to minimize loss of life
- to minimize property damage
- to minimize "down time" in returning to "normal"
- to assist those less able to help themselves
- to survive the minimum 72-hour wait until outside help is available

What Happens When an Earthquake Strikes?

If an earthquake had actually struck around 8:30 p.m. on February 15, 1993, we would first have noticed a large bang or thud announcing the arrival of compression waves, one of two main types of waveforms created by an earthquake. We could have easily mistaken the sound for a tree branch falling on the roof or some kind of collision on Lochside Drive. Shortly thereafter, depending on the exact location of the earthquake, we would have felt the shaking we associate with seismic events generated by the arrival of shear waves. The correct thing to do, at that point, would have been to proceed immediately to a place of safety—under a sturdy table or desk—cover our heads and faces and hold on tight. But remember—we would have needed to do all of this in the dark, while the house was shaking violently and while things were falling off walls and tables! The noise would have been deafening. Our furniture would have been dancing. Windows would have exploded. Dishes would have fallen from cupboards. Water pipes, heating oil pipes and gas lines could have broken. In a matter of seconds (a large magnitude 'quake could last 40 to 60 seconds or more), our home could have been severely damaged and the inside temperature would have been rapidly approximating the outside temperature. The thundering roar of the earthquake would be replaced by a comparative silence punctuated by gusts of wind blowing through window openings and the sound of escaping water. "Are we both uninjured? Where are the winter coats? Don't move—the tile floor is shattered and it's covered with broken glass..." Suddenly, we're pretty much on our own. There is no electricity, the water may be unsafe to drink and our house may be unsafe to stay in. We know that we can expect to wait seventy-two hours for outside help (more or less, depending on location and how severely municipal emergency services have been damaged), and we'll have to depend on our own resourcefulness, and that of our community, to survive the next three days.

The Next Three Days....

How we will all survive "the next three days" depends to a large degree on how well we have anticipated and prepared. The new Neighbour Helping Neighbour program, recently launched by the Municipality of Saanich, is designed to provide a structure for communities to work together in preparing for and recovering from a disaster. I am pleased to inform you that Murray Bryden, Saanich's Deputy Fire Chief and the individual responsible for the Neighbour Helping Neighbour program, will be a guest speaker at the Annual General Meeting of the Cordova Bay Association. Details about that meeting be found elsewhere in this issue of the Cordovan.
