

Proposed community centre addition to Cordova Bay School is at the left in this eastern elevation.

New community centre construction could begin in the fall

ALTHOUGH the proposed community centre at Cordova Bay School cleared another hurdle at a public forum late last month, construction is still many months away.

Saanich Recreation Director Ken Kreiger told the well-attended meeting that detailed drawings now have to be prepared and submitted to Saanich council and various committees with estimates of cost. So far Saanich has only approved funding for the preliminary studies.

If the municipality decided to proceed with a borrowing bylaw this would be subject to a counter-petition, causing a further delay.

Mr. Kreiger's estimate was that given council's approval, construction might begin in October or November and would take seven months to complete.

Architect Ladislav Holovsky, principal of Advanced Architecture Inc. described the process of elimination that resulted in four designs being rejected in favour of the final version presented to the meeting.

The emphasis was to provide a secure access to both the school and the new community centre addition, he explained. To the left of the existing entrance on the east side of the school there would be a lounge acting as a social space. Beyond that would be a large room with a moveable dividing wall and a sprung floor to provide for such activities as aerobics. There would be direct access from this room to a fenced-in courtyard for outdoor activities.

Lochside Drive 'Berlin Wall' project blocked by council

ALTHOUGH it stopped short of denying developer Brad Cunin's application to rezone 5110 Lochside Drive to RS-12 to allow four houses to be built, Saanich council has refused to send the proposal to public hearing because of strong local opposition to a planned 15-foot retaining wall running parallel to the street.

Instead, council tabled consideration of the proposal, telling the applicant to go back to the drawing board. "We are saving the applicant time and money because if this went to public hearing it would certainly be defeated," said one councillor.

According to Mr. Cunin's application, the wall, dubbed the Berlin Wall by critics, is needed to support fill needed to build an access road to the four lots. Instead of separate driveways, the lots would be serviced by this one road running parallel to Lochside Drive with an entrance at the north end of the property. The wall would be set back about three metres from the eastern property line.

Despite Mr. Cunin's assurances that the concrete block wall would eventually be partly hidden by newly-planted trees and hanging plants such as ivy, several councillors and members of the public challenged this assumption. Similar concrete block walls erected on Interurban Road several years ago are as ugly as the day they were built, remarked Councillor Judy Brownoff.

At the committee of the whole meeting on March 8 there was also considerable discussion on the need for the proposed access road to be five metres wide, which is wider than some stretches of Lochside Drive. Mr. Cunin stated that this was necessary to allow residents to park on this road outside their homes and allow for the passage of emergency vehicles.

Councillor Vic Derman commented that the proposal seemed to be driven by engineering design rather than by a regard for the community and Mayor Frank Leonard drew loud applause from the public gallery when he remarked that the proposed RS-12 zoning was probably wrong for the site.

Since the subdivision application as it stands is blocked from further consideration by council, Cordova Bay Association acting president Susan Bridges hopes that Mr. Cunin will produce an alternative proposal

New community centre

Responding to questions, Mr. Holovsky said the kitchen area in the new addition would in fact be more of a servery. While it would have basic equipment such as a dishwasher, there would not be a commercial cooking range, precluding catering on a large scale.

Questions raised by members of the audience were mainly concerned with parking, and there were assurances that there are ample parking spaces given the time the community centre would be in operation compared with school hours.

As for the school district's role in providing the building space, Mr. Kim Milburn, superintendent of School District 63 stated that this project was regarded as benefiting the community as a whole and not a revenue-raising project for the school board.

Mr. Mark Knight, principal of Cordova Bay School, said that he welcomed the opportunity for the school to be more involved with the community and looked forward to co-operation between the school and the new centre.

Brownies get a taste of Mexico
 THE BROWNIES have completed the requirements for the Our Cabana World Tour, loving trying on sombreros and ponchos. They made tin art from aluminum plates and played some Mexican games. Our Cabana is a Girl Guide world centre in Mexico.

The Guides learned about the world flag by using a computer simulation and guessing what would pop up on various parts of the flag. They also played the World Centre fruit salad game.

The Brownies made lunch for themselves and a parent or sibling and learned about the food groups. They also made up games and talked about healthy lifestyles. The Guides learned about nutrition and budgets by doing a pretend shopping trip at Food Forum in our community. They were challenged to make up a balanced meal and stay within a budget. One of the parents who is a photographer visited and talked about photography, leaving the girls with a challenging project to complete.

You may have noticed some of the girls selling Girl Guide cookies in the neighbourhood. If you didn't have someone come to your door, please give me a call at 658-5687 and I'll arrange for some cookies to be delivered to your home

In the spring, the girls sell the famous vanilla and chocolate cookies at $4.00 a box to support their activities.

If you would like your daughter to join the girls in this district in having fun while learning about many different things, or would like more information about the various age groups in Guiding, please give me a call at 658-5687.

Saanich moves to improve safety on Cordova Bay Road

A START to improving safety on Cordova Bay Road was made when Mayor Frank Leonard and municipal staff met with members of the Cordova Bay Road Sub-committee last month.

The sub-committee's goal of improving traffic and pedestrian safety along the road supports the guiding principles in the municipality's Streetscape program and in January the sub-committee submitted a set of action priorities (as outlined in The Cordovan).

As a result, municipal staff are starting work on immediate safety improvements and will start planning for further implementation.

Immediate action will provide marked crosswalks on Cordova Bay Road at Galey Way and Walema Avenue. The intersection of Cordova Bay Road and Claremont Avenue will be studied with the aim of improving vehicle turning and pedestrian safety. The Agate Lane area and Cordova Bay Road between Galey Way and Maxine Lane will be examined for improvements in the walkway and pedestrian safety. The playground signage near the Parkview store will have 30km tabs added.

Cordova Bay Road will continue as a truck route for local destinations only and through truck traffic will not be encouraged.

As an initial step towards future planning, Saanich staff members will accompany sub-committee members on a walk along Cordova Bay Road between Galey Way and the Parkview store to examine at first hand the conditions pedestrians encounter.

For more information contact Alison Battuello (658-4762), Doug Beale (658-4606), Wayne Christmas (658-2290) or Don Johannessen (658-8824).

The original headland control design developed in Australia was modified for the Spanish Banks site controlled by the Vancouver Parks Board. Diagram at left show how placement of "hooks" at the end of the artificially constructed headlands resulted in an increase in beach areas. Diagram at right shows the improved effect of adding a short length of headland to produce a "Y".

Australian design favoured to fight local beach erosion

A PUBLIC MEETING will be held in May or early June to discuss a promising headland control design to control erosion along Mount Douglas Park beach.

The design was developed by Sandwell Engineering as a result of its research into the "Australian Sill" technique. With its natural approach to shoreline stabilization, the Australian Sill approach was Mount Douglas Park Shoreline Advisory Committee's favourite among several options presented to it by Sandwell Engineering at meetings last year.

The consensus was that a natural method was required to preserve the natural dynamics of the beach and that the "sill" concept was the least intrusive and most esthetically appealing.

As requested by the committee, Sandwell Engineering presented an update of the Australian technique at a recent meeting. This included a report on the recent application at Spanish Banks in Vancouver and preliminary design and layout for the Mount Douglas Park shoreline.

The Australian Sill approach termed "headland control" was developed by researchers at the University of Western Australia and has been successfully used in many locations all over the world. Observations showed that natural sedimentary coastlines with a persistent ocean swell assume a characteristic stable shape.

The position of surrounding headlands, dominant wave direction and patterns of sedimentary transport determine the shape of stable bays.

These findings led to the theory that placing additional headlands along an eroding shoreline would create these stable bays and stabilize the shoreline.

Sandwell investigated its application at Spanish Banks and Locarno Beach in Vancouver implemented by the Parks Board from 1989 to 1993.

The advisory committee is made up of representatives from Saanich Planning Department, Saanich Parks and Public Works, the Friends of Mount Douglas Park Society, the Department of Fisheries and Oceans Canada, the provincial Ministry of Water, Land and Air Protection, the Cordova Bay Association and the Gordon Head Residents' Association, with Saanich Engineering co-ordinating.

The Cordova Bay Association's representative on the committee is Alison Battuello who can be reached at 658-4762.

'55 Plus' association seeks younger seniors to help launch activity centre

IN READINESS for managing the proposed seniors' centre which will operate out of an addition to be built on to Cordova Bay School, the Cordova Bay Seniors' Committee has registered a new society called The Cordova Bay 55 Plus Association.

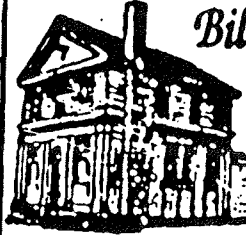

The committee is looking for additional members from recently-retired residents in the area to bring their ideas for daytime programs. Daphne Chazottes, chair of the group, says this is a great opportunity for younger seniors over the age of 55 to make sure their interests are represented in the planning process and ensure that the new centre becomes a dynamic part of our community.

The new society will manage daytime programs from Monday to Friday, leaving the facility available to other age groups in evenings and on weekends under the management of Saanich Recreation Department which looks forward to a Cordova Bay location for the many programs available in other Saanich centres.

The new facility is the result of an agreement between Cordova Bay School, School District 63 and the Municipality of Saanich.

Anyone interested in joining the group, or needing further information, should phone Daphne Chazottes at 658-4030 or email her at daphnechaz@shaw.ca.

The executive of the Cordova Bay Association welcomes residents to its meetings, held at Cordova Bay United Church on the second Thursday of each month (except for July and August) at 7:00 p.m. Anyone wishing to address the executive should contact Susan Bridges (658-6070) one week before the meeting to be placed on the agenda.

Municipality updates local area plan for rural Saanich

WITH only one farm remaining in Cordova Bay, local residents nevertheless have the opportunity to participate in the update of the Rural Saanich Local Area Plan.

An open house to present proposals to the public will be held on May 5, from 4:00 to 8:00 p.m. at Prospect Lake Community Hall on Sparton Road.

Saanich Planning Department's statement of the community's vision says that rural Saanich is a peaceful community with rural acreages and small-scale farms, safe roads and trails, and a natural and pastoral landscape.

The highlights of the policy to be presented at the public meeting in the heritage context are:

- * Protection for heritage buildings and structures.
- * Consideration for a West Saanich road heritage conservation area.
- * Maintenance guidelines for significant country roads.

To develop a sense of community in rural Saanich, the plan seeks to improve community access to school facilities, provide support for community associations, and promote healthy lifestyle and community interaction.

Growth management would involve maintaining rural Saanich outside the Urban Containment Boundary. Protecting the environment would entail preservation of green/blue spaces, further protection for water-courses and riparian vegetation, protection and monitoring groundwater quality and quantity and providing environmental education for local residents.

Significantly, rural values and the Agricultural Land Reserve would be maintained, and there would be support for direct marketing and agri-tourism activities on commercial farms. The draft plan also provides for consideration of intensive farming regulations and agri-tourism guidelines.

The municipality's emphasis on trails is supported in the draft plan, which calls for a major and local greenways network, the promotion of land stewardship by private and institutional landowners, guidelines to preserve important views and vistas, consideration for more natural parks, and expanded trails network and improved equestrian facilities. A new sports field location is also mentioned.

As for utilities and services, the draft plan envisages that sewers would only be installed to address health concerns. There would be support for new regulations and public education about on-site sewage disposal. Monitoring groundwater and water conservation would be encouraged and there would be maintenance and enhancement of the open-channel stormwater drainage system. The plan also calls for support for drainage projects to improve opportunities for farming.

While traffic is not often considered to be a rural issue, the plan calls for a review of road classifications and standards, vegetation management guidelines for significant country roads, work to mitigate the impact of heavy truck traffic, consideration for rural transit services, a commuter and recreational bikeway network, consideration for safe walking/cycling routes to school, and consideration for equestrian route safety improvements.

Housing and commercial and industrial developments would be limited, with large-lot subdivision minimums and low housing density, limited commercial expansion only in the rural market area at Prospect Lake/West Saanich Road and no new farm markets outside the rural market area. There would be no new golf courses and/or driving ranges.

New institutional uses would only be approved if they are appropriate to the rural area.

For further details contact Neil Findlow in Saanich Planning at 475-5494 (ext. 3405).

BE PREPARED. NOT SCARED!

Prepare for an emergency
by stocking up on food

ANY MAJOR EMERGENCY can disrupt your ability to purchase food so it's wise to maintain a two-week supply of food beyond your normal requirement.

Selecting food for your emergency supply does not necessarily having to buy expensive dehydrated, freeze-dried or other types of emergency food. Canned or dry mixes that you have on your shelves right now are well suited for emergency supplies.

But choose foods your family will enjoy. Offering strange foods can make an already stressful experience more upsetting. Store foods that require little or no cooking or refrigeration. Store foods that require little or no water for preparation. Water supplies may have been damaged or become polluted. Choose foods that will not increase thirst. Choose can and package sizes carefully, look for sizes that your family can consume in one meal. Remember to store foods for anyone requiring a special diet.

Other items to store with your food supply are paper or plastic plates, cups and utensils. Remember to include a manual can opener, since power may be out. Make sure you have the appropriate utensils to prepare your food.

When storing emergency foods date each package or tin. Once or twice a year rotate these items into your regular food supply and replace them with fresh items. Store foods in a cool, dry place, preferably at between 5 and 15 degrees Celsius. Keep stored foods away from petroleum products. Some foods absorb smells. Avoid storing foods directly on a concrete floor, water condensation can cause cans to rust. Protect food from rodents and insects by storing boxes in metal containers.

Using emergency food involves using perishable foods in your refrigerator first. Use frozen foods in your refrigerator second. Tape a list of freezer contents on the outside to minimize the need to open the door while the power is out. Use canned and dried foods later. If there has been structural damage, inspect the cans and discard any that are bulging or leaking. Do not drink or eat anything from open containers near shattered glass. Tiny glass shards can be almost impossible to see.

Always remember to have a complete first aid kit on hand. Contents should include hydrogen peroxide, antibiotic ointment, alcohol swabs, antacids, Aspirin, anti-diarrheal medications, laxatives, vitamin supplements. Speak with your physician about storing prescription medicines and ask about having a double prescription to allow you to rotate your medications regularly.

SAFE BOATING

By Patricia Sparks, N. Member of the Canadian Power & Sail Squadrons. 658-8614

That terrible gushing feeling

SPRING IS HERE again and with it comes one of my favourite (if I can call it that) memories of checking the "new" boat that we had recently purchased and readying it for the coming season.

We chose to moor our boat at Westport Marina, which thankfully had a haul-out facility. Our saving grace on this particular day was the fact the staff was on hand, otherwise I am not sure what we would have done.

We checked out the engine compartment, did an oil change, checked the water levels in the batteries, replaced the zinc finger in the heat exchanger and replaced the in-line fuel filters. As a matter of course we also replaced the water pump impellers.

We inspected the bilge and its surroundings, lifting the float switch on the electric bilge pump to ensure that it turned on automatically.

In the meantime, my father-in-law was working on the pipes in the galley and inadvertently bumped the sea cock situated under the sink. A short while later he noticed water squirting out from an electrical plug and called Derrick to investigate, saying "should water be coming from here?"

They then discovered the broken sea cock and after some time were able to stop the leak. Hidden from view, mostly under seats, in a closet or wherever, sea cocks can easily be forgotten and these ones had obviously not been attended to.

Derrick then decided to check the rest of the sea cocks but when he tried to open and close the one in the area of the "head" it came right off in his hand.

Water was rushing in and the boat now had to be hauled out in a hurry. The sea cocks had virtually turned to mud over a period of time due to electrolysis and poor maintenance.

Boating is a most pleasurable experience, but to enjoy the sport, maintenance is imperative, for both safety and peace of mind. By the way, baking soda is a great cleaning product, even on fibreglass.

If you are interested in participating in any of the above programs or would like more information about our church, please phone 658-8111 or fax us at 658-8431.

Updates planned for two Cordova Bay playgrounds

SAANICH Parks department is upgrading two local playgrounds this summer, one in Cordova Bay Park (next to the Parkview store) and the other in Lochside Park.

At Cordova Bay Park the layout of the existing playground area will be improved. Although the swings in the park will be retained there may only be space for two seats instead of four. The slide will remain and an additional one or two pieces of playground equipment may be installed, depending on space.

With the assistance of funding from the Cordova Bay Kiwanis Club, the playground at Lochside Park will be renovated to include a structure for 2 to 12-year-olds, a teeter-totter, four swings and a Jeep play unit. Although the equipment will go into the existing play area there will be a greater separation from the parking lot.

An open house to discuss these proposals will be held on April 28 at Cordova Bay Elementary School from 5:00 to 8:00 p.m.

Improvements to the Claremont School and Elk Lake School soccer fields will be the subject of an information meeting to be held at Claremont Secondary School on April 20, with the time to be determined. This meeting will be advertised in the Saanich News the previous week.

Another project in the offing involves renovations to the play area in Claremont Park. However, this awaits a review of park use, coupled with a survey of the expectations of area residents.

Art Knapp Plantland comes to Cordova Bay

A WELL-KNOWN name in the garden nursery business has arrived in Cordova Bay with the Art Knapp company's purchase of the Victoria Garden Centre from Wolfe and Gail Hoyer.

Located in the Mattick's Farm complex, the store is managed by Holly Tyler, who worked in the Art Knapp Richmond location before re-locating to the Victoria area with her husband two years ago. The garden centre staff is continuing under the new management.

The new owners are members of the Van Hest family, who operate the Richmond and Nanaimo Art Knapp locations and have been in the industry for more than 30 years.

Frank and Liz Van Hest opened what is one of the original Art Knapp stores in Richmond in 1966. Three of their four sons and a sister-in-law are managers and general managers in the business. Frank Van Hest, now retired, was elected a lifetime member by the B. C. Landscape and Nursery Association this year, having previously been named nurseryman of the year in 2000 for service to the industry.

The new Art Knapp store is offering an expanded product line including nursery stock, perennials, pottery and garden fashions

Can you help deliver The Cordovan?

MARGARET MOORE is looking for volunteers on three delivery routes for The Cordovan to replace much-appreciated long-term volunteers who are moving away from the community.— Del Monte Avenue from Haliburton Road to Claremont Avenue (41 households); Beckton Road, Polson Terrace and Blakeney Place (68 households) and Cordova Bay Road from Royal Oak Drive to the Mount Douglas Park resort (42 households)..

If you can help or require more information, please phone Margaret at 658-8789.

School musicians prepare for the big spring show

THERE'S NO BUSINESS like show business at Claremont Secondary School as the musical theatre class prepares for the big spring show in the Ridge Playhouse. Just Off Broadway is described as a fabulous review with great songs and dances from contemporary Broadway shows like Mamma Mia, Chicago, Rent, The Producers, Lion King and many more. Tickets are available through the Playhouse box office at 658-6660 this month. The show runs from Friday, May 27 to Saturday, June 5.

Claremont Concert Band has been busy with a March 31 performance with the Greater Victoria Concert Band, and the jazz band appeared with Mr. Fraser's Big Band on April 1. The season winds up with a spring concert with Royal Oak Middle School on Thursday, June 10 in the Ridge Playhouse. The final choir concert will be held on June 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the Playhouse.

The school gym has been enlivened with a mural of a Spartan by Steve Milroy of Wonderworks Mural & Sculpture Co. Covering an entire wall, the mural depicts a Spartan (the school mascot) with the Cordova Bay panorama in the background. Proceeds from the 2003 Claremont Community Fair, Claremont Grad Committees 2203 and 2004 provided the funding.

Students and staff at Claremont thank Mr. Jon Siebert, staff members, students, parents, families, the Cordova Bay Association and many businesses for their generous donations that made last year's community fair such a great success. — Gloria Wills, Vice-President.
